WILD ROSES.

On long, serene midsummer days
Of ripening fruit and yellowed grain,
How sweetly, by dim woodland ways,
In tangled hedge or leafy lane,
Fair wild rose thickets, you unfold
Those pale pink stars with hearts of gold!

Your sleek patrician sisters dwell
On lawns where gleams the shrub's trim bank,
In terraced gardens, tended well,
Near pebbled walk and quaint kiosk,
In costliest urns their colors rest,
They beam on beauty's fragrant breast!

But you in lowly calm abide,
Scarce heeded save by breeze or bee;
You know what splendor, pomp and pride
Full oft your brilliant sisters see,
What sorrow, too, and bitter fears—
What mad farewells and hopeless tears!

How some are kept in old, dear books,
That once in bridal wreaths were worn;
How some are kissed, with tender looks,
And later tossed aside with scorn;
How some their taintless petals lay
On icy foreheads pale as they!

So, while these truths you vaguely guess,
Abloom in many a lonesome spot,
Shy roadside roses, may you bless
The fate that rules your modest lot,
Like rustic maids that meekly stand
Below the ladies of their land!
—Edgar Fawcett.

THE OLD FRIENDS.

BY SARAH DOUDNEY.

Where are they scattered now
The old, old friends?
One made her dwelling where the maples glow,
And mighty streams through solemn forests flow,
But never from the pine-crowned land of snow
A message sends.

Some meet me oft amid
Life's common ways;
And then, perchance, a word or smile declares
That warm hearts throb beneath their load of cares;
For love grows on, like wheat among the tares,
Till harvest days.

"But some are fall'n asleep,"
The words are sweet!
Oh, friends at rest beneath the blessed sod,
My feet still tread the weary road ye trod
Ere yet your loving souls went back to God!
When shall we meet?

Oh, thou divinest Friend,
When shall it be
That I may know them in their garments white?
And see them with a new and clearer sight,
Mine old familiar friends—made fair and bright,
Like unto Thee!

Miscellaneous.

GERALD MASSEY INSANE.

The Weaver Boy Put in a Lunatic Asylum Vivid Sketch of his Career by One who Knew Him—His Wife and Home Instincts—Exciting Scenes at His Lectures—Inner Life of a Gifted but Unbalanced Genius.

Tidings have reached this city from private sources in England that the well-known poet and lecturer, Gerald Massey, is suffering from aberration of mind, and has been placed in a private asylum. To those who have been at all familiar with the career of the gifted and unfortunate poet, this sad news will not occasion unmixed surprise. In his marriage, as infelicitous as Byron, he has been literally chained to a woman who was at once an Amazon, a Medea, and a Venus. The writer became acquainted with Mr. Massey in the winter of 1854-55 in Newcastle-on-Tyne, England. Gerald was then a young man of twenty-six, engaged on a lecturing tour. For three nights he lectured before the Literary and Philosophical Society of that town, his terms being ten pounds sterling per night. His success was immense. Lord Ravensworth was the chairman of his second lecture, and the poet was, for a couple of days his lordship's guest at Ravensworth Castle. At every town he visited on that tour he was the guest of the aristocracy, and though this distinction did not turn his head or make him arrogant, there was no disguising the fact that he gradually became in the slightest degree snobbish. While engaged in lecturing, he also was a regular contributor to the columns of the Athenæum. Consequently his worldly circumstances were easy, and he was a jolly but temperate companion. He talked much of his home, his baby, his Newfoundland dog, Carlo, and his "beautiful, beautiful wife;" and he used to say that the money he made by his lectures very inadequately repaid him for the home happiness he was deprived of during his tour. He abhorred tobacco, and repeatedly said he could not understand how a man of culture and refinement could introduce the "beastly odor of tobacco smoke into his home."

EVERYTHING WAS LOVELY

with Gerald in those days. The writer was over half a dozen years his junior, and caught some of the poet's enthusiarm while listening to his fervid eloquence. Let me describe him as he then appeared: A very little man, with a shock of sandy hair, combed straight back, without parting, from the forehead; underneath a pale, careworn face; moustache lighter than the hair, a scrambling goatee, large, luminous iron-gray eyes; an upper lip too large for the face, and a painful lack of character about the lines of the mouth. His hands where as white as those of an hospital patient, and though they were small, the fingers had not that tapering form or delicate tip which we are accustomed to associate with the artistic or poetic mind. He had then written a few poems, one of which was published in the Edinburgh Witness, while the celebrated geologist, Hugh Miller, was its editor. But that was before poor Gerald was married; or to adhere strictly to facts, in the year 1848. Alas! the year after, he was married to his queenly-looking Dulcinea; and as she said herself, "Massey's impassioned poetry won me." We have no room to print the entire poem of "Unbeloved," which won Gerald's wife, but this notice of the man's life would be incomplete without the first verse, which paints his hopeless passion at the time he was

COURTING THE BEAUTIFUL MABEL,

"Like a tree beside the river
Of her life, that runs from me,
Do I lean me, murmuring ever
Of my love's idolatry;
And I stretch out arms of blessing,
And I breathe out words of prayer—
And, with passionate caressing,
Waste my life upon the air.

In my ears the siren river
Sings, and tinkles up in my face
But forever and forever
Runs from my embrace."

Mr. Massey was then living in an elegantly appointed house in Portobello, a couple of miles from Edinburgh. The writer visited him there in the summer of 1855. It was impossible to escape the conviction that the poet was then "overshadowed" and henpecked by his wife. She had a grand presence, large, jet-like black eyes, a hard mouth fine teeth, and a form that a sculptor would love to model. After luncheon, Gerald and I took a walk round Arthur's Seat, and he commented enthusiastically, as was his wont, on the physical and picturesque contours of the New Haven fisher women returning home from Edinburgh. As I left him for the night he said, while clasping my hand with both of his, "My boy, you must get married; see how happy I am!"

Two years elapsed, and I heard little of Massey. But when the winter came I was surprised to see a "poster" in the market place of South Shields, announcing that "Gerald Massey, the poet, would deliver three lectures in the Central Hall, Chapter Row." I attended the first lecture. Its subject was "Hood, and Wit and Humor."

I occupied a back seat, yet I could distinctly perceive that the poet's face was more haggard and careworn than when I last saw him. There was probably a majority of ladies in the fashionable audience, and the lecture proceeded with that rippling eloquence of which Massey was such a master. His voice—always full, musical and mellow—had lost none of its resonance, and his hearers were alternately dissolved in tears or shaking with laughter. Tender glances from bright eyes were thrown upon him, and before he had progressed half an hour it required no particularly acute observer to discover that half of the young ladies in the hall adored him. When he began to recite the "Bridge of Sighs," you could have heard a pin drop, and as he with touching pathos and lingering sadness repeated the lines:

"Cross her hand humbly,
As if praying dumbly,
Over her breast:
Owning her weakness,
Her evil behavior,
And leaving, with meekness,
Her sins to her Saviour!"

there was not a dry female eye in the assemblage.

I saw Mrs. Massey gaze round with astonishment. She saw that the little man was the idol of the hour—that tears were flowing from aristocratic cheeks, that beautiful young hearts responded to that touch of nature which makes the whole world kin. The sight was too much for her nature. With a wild shrill shriek,

SHE APPARENTLY FAINTED AWAY.

Poor Gerald advanced to the edge of the platform pale with anger and half unnerved. Four men hoist the woman and bear her from the place, two matronly women attend and apply restoratives, tidings pass round the hall that the fainting woman is the lecturer's wife and that she is jealous of him, and after a while the lecture proceeds undisturbed.

ANOTHER SCENE.

At the next lecture I went as a privileged individual with Mr. and Mrs. Massey, to the Central Hall. The lecture was upon "Burns, and Love Poetry.', The hall was crowded, but the lecturer looked as if he expected a Sheriff around. He was fidgety and restless, and enunciation was at times indistinct. I sat beside Mrs. Massey. Said she to me in a whisper: "Look! Gerald is in love with that lady; I know it. See how he looks at her!" Almost immediately came the recitation of the poem, "To Mary in Heaven," and with an amazonian yell, Mrs. Massey fainted away, and I was one of the bearers who conveyed her from the premises.

IT WAS THE SAME STORY

wherever he lectured. Mrs. Massey systematically fainted away, and had to be carried from the hall, while he looked on with an expression of poignant anguish. There were no aristocratic houses offering their hospitality to the poet and his wife now; but there were humble friends who were not banished, like bees by the wintery weather, who now surrounded him, and who offered their "best apartments" as a dwelling for the poet and his wife. And in one of those comfortable, unpretending houses—No. 9 Summerhill Terrace, Newcastle-on-Tyne—I dined with Massey and his wife in 1858. It was Sunday, and after dinner Mr. M——, Massey, and myself retired to the "library" to smoke. There was no sentimental aversion to tobacco now in the poet's mind; but he had a lingering fear—and expressed it—that "she" might burst into the room at any moment. It was as he expected. She opened the door, and, with the appearance of a Medea, cried: "Gerald, don't you know 'Carlo' is dying?" This was the dog, and the effect on the sensitive man was most distressing. Soon after she returned with the announcement: "Gerald, our little Freddy is sick." "Oh, curse you," cried Massey, throwing down and breaking his long clay pipe, "you will kill me!" At every town in which he lectured these scenes were repeated. And she would wake him up in the night to retail horrible visions, where some cherished member of his family was predicted dead. By-and-by he began to believe that his wife possessed the power of divination, and it was then not a difficult road for him to reach a

PROFOUND BELIEF IN SPIRITUALISM.

His vagaries in spiritualistic business are notorious to all newspaper readers. In all of these eccentricities he has been assisted by his wife. Together they have seen visions of babies and dogs, and discovered that the bones of the weird visitors were buried beneath the Massey hearth-stone. These absurd visions he minutely described in the London Spiritualist, and then his friends and well-wishers began to suspect that his mental balance was shaken. A few years since, it will be remembered, he lectured in Boston and other New England towns on spiritualism. But the man had lost his magnetism, and his lectures, as they deserved to be, were an absolute failure. In point of fact, poor Massey has been approaching insanity for years.

Most of Massey's latest writings have been on the subject of spiritualism, and his most intimate friends have regarded every succeeding speech or article as a nearer approach to lunacy. Massey will not be regarded by critics as a strictly original poet. Taking Tennyson as his model, he has, in some instances almost servilely imitated that great master. Still, there are poems of Massey's that can only perish with the English language.

An officer of the regular army laughed at a timid woman because she was alarmed at the noise of a cannon when a salute was fired. He subsequently married that timid woman, and six months afterward he took off his boots in the hall when he came in late at night.

Directions about Traveling.

Kate Thorn gives the following excellent advice about "How to travel:"

In the first place, know where you are going and how you are going.

And if you know what you are going for, it will be quite as well.

Dress well, for on your dress depends in a great measure the treatment you will receive on your journey. The world at large has never learned to discriminate between the deserving and the undeserving in any other way than by appearance, and if you would be treated with courtesy and attention wear good clothes. Not gaudy or showy ones, but something of a material which looks well, and which will not be ruined by dust, rain or dampness. Avoid all trailing skirts for gentlemen to wipe their feet on, and trimmings of fringes and laces to catch on other people's buttons and parasol handles.

Dress warm enough to save you from the necessity of carrying more than one extra wrap, for bundles are a nuisance on a journey, particularly a long journey.

Take no more baggage than you can help. You will be surprised, if you try it, to see how little you can be comfortable with.

In a hand satchel take along combs, soap, brushes, towels, needles and thread, scissors, strings, boot buttons, handkerchiefs, extra gloves and stockings, and other personal necessaries, for if your journey extends over a week you will be sure to need them before you can get access to your trunk.

Check your trunk when you set forth for the place of your destination, and having put the checks where they will be in no danger of getting lost, dismiss the trunk from your mind. There is not the slightest necessity of "worrying about it," as most ladies are in the habit of doing.

When you buy your ticket, get a railroad map of the country you propose traveling over, together with a time table of distances. These are furnished by every railroad of note, and by consulting them you will be saved from annoying conductors and fellow travelers with questions.

Carry no money in your pocket beyond the little you may need to supply yourself with papers and refreshments, and do not confide to anybody where you have secured the bulk of your money or other valuables.

In large cities, make all inquiries of hotel clerks and policemen.

In choosing a hackman always take the one who solicits you least.

Be courteous to everybody, and confidential with nobody. A lady is much better protected on a journey by her womanly dignity than by the gallantry of a gentleman of whom she knows nothing.

Make up your mind before you start on your journey to bear all the little trials and disagreeables incident to traveling with good humor and equanimity.

Do not fly into a passion if a drunken man staggers into the car, or turn up your nose if somebody swears, or look insufferably annoyed if a baby cries, or some old gentleman falls asleep and snores.

Be patient, quiet, and mind your own business thoroughly, and if the boiler does not burst, or the train does not meet with broken rails, washed out culverts, or something of that ilk, you will in all probably reach your journey's end in safety.

MRS. POTTS'S DISSIPATED HUSBAND.—One night during the recent troubles in the Pennsylvania coal regions Judge Potts's brother, Thomas Potts, was round at a meeting of mine owners, and after the adjournment he stepped into a tavern. While there he met some friends, and in the course of an hour or two he got very intoxicated. On his way home he lost his hat, and a miner who knew him, feeling compassion for him, clapped on his head a miner's hat, and in order to make the dark street look brighter he lighted the lamp in front of the hat. When Potts reached the house his wife had gone to bed and the lights were out, but he felt certain that the lamp was burning in the hall burning in the hall, but he could not for the life of him tell where it was. He looked at the regular lamp and it seemed to be out; then hunted in every direction for the light, but he was unable to find it, although it seemed to shine brightly wherever he went. Presently he happened to stop in front of the mirror in the hut rack, and then he saw precisely where the light was. After a brief objurgation upon Mrs. Potts for leaving a light in such a place, he went up to the mirror and tried to blow it out. He blew and blew, but somehow the flame burned as steadily as before.

"That," said Potts, "is the most extraordinary lamp's ever been my misfortune to encounter. Then he took off his coat, and holding it in front of him crept cautiously up to the mirror and tried to brush the coat over the lamp, which still burned brightly. He said:

"That's cer'ingly very extro'nary! m oz' 'stonishin' circumstanz ever come un'er my obzervation. Don'no how t'account for it!"

It occurred to him that perhaps he might smash the lamp with an umbrella. Seizing the weapon he went up to the hat rack, and aiming a terrible blow at the light he brought the umbrella down. He missed and smashed his Sunday hat into chaos. He took aim again and caught the umbrella in the lamp overhead, bringing it down with a crash. Then he tried a third time, and plunged the ferrule of the umbrella through the mirror, smashing it to atoms; he felt exultant for a moment as the light disappeared, but he was perplexed to find there was another light somewhere, he did not know exactly where. So he sat down on the stairs and remarked: "'Moz' 'stonishin' circumstanz ever come un'er my obzervation. Whaten thunder doz it mean, an'how? Light's gone, an' yet it's shinin'! Perfectly incompre'nsible! I wish t'gracious Mrs. Potts 'd wake up an' splain it. Durn 'f I know what I had better do."

Then Potts took off his hat to scratch his head in the hope that he might scare up an idea, and the truth flashed upon him. Gazing at the lamp for a moment, until he drank, in a full conception of the trouble it had caused him, he suddenly smashed it down on the floor in a rage, and extinguished it after covering two yards of carpet with grease. Then he went to bed, and in the morning Mrs. Potts informed him that some of those awful miners had broken into the house the night before and left one of their hats with a lamp. Potts turned over in bed so that she could not see his face, and said if the stern hand of the law wasn't laid upon those ruffians soon nobody's life would be safe.

What is done in June.

In June the country is sorely scourged with strawberry festivals and other devices which empty pockets and disorder stomachs.

In June a man who can't afford his wife a hired girl can spend thirty cents a day for bock beer.

In June banana peels cripple more people than cannon balls.

In June croquet works woe with youthful hearts and youthful corns.

In June people turn over a new leaf, and move to avoid back rent.

In June the tramp trampeth after anything but a plow.

In June the house fly becometh numerous once more, and, as of old, has no other ambition than to flop into the butter.

In June the contact of warm lips through wooden palings is diviner than at any other season of the year. Consequently it is the accepted time for moonlight swinging on front gates.

In June men invest all their wealth on their pet base ball clubs, and their wealth never bothers them any more.

In June a man looks long and earnestly for his last summer's clothes—and he finds only a pair of cheap vases.

In June asparagus appears on the table, and is as delicious as a dish of boiled clothes pins.

In June Sunday schools pick up marvelously, preparatory to expected picnics.

In June all that a man hath, yea all that he can borrow, that will he give to see a base ball match.

In June little girls stretch cords across pavements and "jump the rope," and every lady that passes that way falls over the rope and wounds his nose.

In June radishes are strong enough for base ball bats, and barber's grease will blister the scalp of a cocoanut on a single application.

In June cupid and turtle doves are abroad, tender passion smites right and left, and men are found kissing pretty servant girls behind hall doors.

In June a woman no longer wants a spring bonnet. She has repented her ways—she wants a summer bonnet.

O June it is the jolliest month
Of all the glad new year, sir,
For kissing girls, playing at ball,
And drinking lager beer, sir.

FUNERALS IN 1776.—Funerals touched weddings at the point of feasting, and were often very expensive, showy and pompous occasions. In some parts of the country, especially among the Dutch of Long Island and New York, it was the custom of a young man to lay by his earnings after becoming of age until a sufficient sum had accumulated to provide for him a "respectable" funeral when he should come to die. Oftentimes the young burgher would reserve half of the portion of wine which he had liberally laid in for his marriage, to be used at the funeral of himself or his wife. Special invitations were sent out for funerals as for parties. The clergymen, pall bearers and physicians attending were provided with scarfs and gloves, and sometimes each with a mourning ring; while the feast which followed the interment at the house of the relatives of the deceased, elaborate with cold roast meats, wines, liquors and pipes, was not unfrequently an occasion of coarse excesses, sometimes descending

FOR PRESIDENT,
SAMUEL J. TILDEN,
OF NEW YORK.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT,
THOMAS A. HENDRICKS,
OF INDIANA.

FOR PRESIDENT,
SAMUEL J. TILDEN.

The Democratic Convention at St. Louis has nominated for President Samuel J. Tilden, now Governor of New York. Our readers are aware that our first choice was Gen. Hancock, and the Pennsylvania delegation deserve credit for the solid support given him. But the selection of Gov. Tilden on the second ballot, by 42 votes beyond the requisite two thirds showed the determination of the delegates to put in nomination, not only one of the nation's ablest statesman, but to do it with such unanimity as to leave no doubt in the minds of the people as to the wisdm of their choice.—Heretofore, rivalry and dissension have slaughtered many of America's ablest statesman, and it is seldom that a man so prominent as Gov. Tilden has received the necessary two-thirds with so slight a contest.

It is a response to the universal demand of the people for Reform; and who better could be entrusted with this herculean task than the man who inaugurated it in New York, against the strongest Ring combinations known in history? We give the people not only our pledge for Reform, as an organization, but present a leader who has been identified with it, and would carry it into effect at Washington as thoroughly as he did in New York. Unlike his opponent, he would lead in the work, and not be dictated to by factions, nor by corrupt influences.

Let every voter who would have A CHANGE, ECONOMY AND REFORM, RALLY FOR TILDEN!

P. S.—Hendricks, of Indiana, is nominated for Vice President by acclamation. It is a ticket to win. It insures the Democracy not only New York, New Hampshire, Connecticut, New Jersey and Indiana in the North, but gives us a good chance for Pennsylvania, Ohio and Illinois. Oregon and California were sure before. With the States we can carry in the South, Tilden and Hendricks will sweep the country.

THE INDIAN WAR.

The Press dispatches give us the following from the "seat of war."

Gen. Crook and Capt. Nickerson have telegraphed to Omaha, under date of the 19, inst., that they had a sharp fight with the Indians on Rosebud Creek, on the morning of the 17th. It lasted several hours, and the loss of the military was 9 men killed and 21 wounded. The Indians made the attack in force, but were defeated, and the soldiers camped on the field. Thirteen dead Sioux were found on the field, and it is believed that many more were killed. Gen. Crook's horse was shot under him. General Crook has ordered five additional companies of infantry and one of cavalry to report at his headquarters.

The action seems to us much like a drawn battle with losses nearly equal. The Indians, on account of their superior numbers can well afford to lose thirteen men killed to our nine. Camping on the field, and sending for reinforcements does not look much like a victory. Perhaps Grant had better have left Custer command the expedition.

HARD OR SOFT?

The financial plank adopted by the Republicans at Cincinnati is as follows:—

IV. In the first act of Congress signed by President Grant, the National Government assumed to remove any doubts of its purpose to discharge all just obligations to public creditors, and solemnly pledged its faith to make provisions at the earliest practicable period for the redemption of the United States notes in coin. Commercial prosperity, public merits, and National credit demand that this promise be fulfilled by a continuous and steady progress to specie payment.

This is richness. The Western greenbacker can argue unlimited time for resumption from it, and the hard money man contend that it means immediate resumption. But we would ask in all candor does it mean the resumption of Specie payments in 1879, according to the Sherman Act? Will the Republican inform us?

HOW DOM PEDRO SPENT SUNDAY.

PROVIDENCE, R. I, June 18.—At Newport to-day Dom Pedro and the Empress attended mass at the Roman Catholic Church, visited the old stone mill, Redwood Library, the torpedo station, and other points of interest. He was entertained at luncheon at the residence of Hon. George Bancroft and afterwards was entertained at the residence of Mayor Bedlow.

What desecration of the Sabbath! Petitions should at once be prepared asking the authorities of Rhode Island to close all places of interest in their jurisdiction on Sunday, so that the Emperor of Brazil may see how a United States Sabbath is observed. It would be well if an injunction could be served on His Royal Highness, restraining him from such wicked amusements. Would it not be better to give as a reason for keeping the Centennial Exhibition closed on Sunday, that it is our duty toward sGod, rather than that we may show the world how we keep the Sabbath.

THE ST. LOUIS PLATFORM.

Our space will not permit us to give this important document in full to our readers this week. Suffice it to say that it is a clear and distinct enunciation of the principles of the Democratic party on all vital questions. It was adopted with great unanimity and enthusiasm.

Our opponents hoped that the currency question would produce a schism in our ranks. Unlike them we have met the question squarely, and demand the immediate repeal of the act for the forced resumption of specie payments in 1879, the passage of which has brought so much distress upon the country. The platform will be given in full next week.

The deaf mutes of Brooklyn have formed a Hayes and Wheeler campaign club.—Gazette and Bulletin.

"Yes, and all the Hayes and Wheeler men elsewhere are deaf mutes." The thing is suggestive.

ST. LOUIS CONVENTION.

The Democratic National Convention met on Tuesday in St. Louis, and elected Henry Watterson, of Kentucky, temporary chairman. Mr. Abbott, of Massachusetts, offered a resolution adopting, until otherwise ordered, the rules of the last National Convention, which included the two-thirds rule. The resolution was adopted. Committees on permanent organization and resolutions were then appointed, and Miss Phebe Cozzens, of St. Louis, was heard in behal of Women Suffrage. A recess was taken until evening, when the Committee on Permanent Organization reported Gen. John A. McClernand, of Illinois, for permanent President, with a vice president from each St ate. The report was adopted, and General McClernand took the chair. Mr. Belmont, of New York, read some resolutions arraigning the Republican party and appealing to the American people to put an end to sectional strife. They were referred, and the Convention then adjourned until morning.

On Wednesday morning the Convention re-assembled, and the platform was adopted. The several candidates were placed in nomination, and the balloting was as follows:

FIRST BALLOT.

Tilden	403½
Hendricks	138½
Hancock	75
Allen	56
Bayard	97
Parker	74

There being no choice the Convention proceeded to a

SECOND BALLOT.

Tilden	535
Allen	54
Hendricks	60
Parker	18
Hancock	59
Bayard	11
Thurman	22

Whole number of votes cast, 738; necessary to a choice, 492. Samuel J. Tilden having received the requisite two-thirds vote was declared nominated. The Convention then adjourned until Thursday morning at 10 o'clock without balloting for a candidate for Vice President.

[Communicated.]

THE TRUE INWARDNESS OF THE CINCINNATI NOMINATIONS.

The nomination of Hayes and Wheeler at Cincinnati has taken the whole country by surprise. Upon the rank and file of the Republican party its effect has been much the same as a douche bath. The ardor and enthusiasm for favorite candidates had become high; but suddenly the thermometer went down to below zero. The main work of the party leaders since has been, by every spicies of political strategy, to simulate, and gradually to create, an enthusiasm which this nomination did not, and of itself could not produce. Hence the Hartford Post says: "We see no reason why Gov. Hayes should not speedily acquire the popularity and receive the vigorous support accorded to Lincoln in his first canvass." This is a tacit admission that he does not at present enjoy such popularity. The language of the Worcester Spy is even more expressive. It says: "If the Cincinnati Convention has not made what we regard as the best possible nomination for the Presidency it has carefully avoided making the worst possible." Indeed! there is certainly some little comfort in the recollection that it might have been worse. The Philadelphia Inquirer is free to tell us how it might have been rendered worse than it is. It says: "At first there will be many chagrined and disappointed, because this or that gentleman was not chosen instead of Gov. Hayes, but after awhile, the expediency of his selection will be seen and felt, and if his nomination fail to arouse great enthusiasm it will certainly be received with great respect. The convention might have nominated Morton or Conkling."

It should be remembered that these are not the frank and candid utterances of the honest masses of the party, who, as yet, are free to express the deep feelings of discontent and dissatisfaction they cherish; but the utterences of selfish party leaders, deeply interested in repressing and suppressing their chagrin and disappointment, so essential to obtaining the final sympathy and support of the rank and file. And the very best they can do is to congratulate themselves with the idea that there was iminent danger that the convention might have nominated Morton or Conkling. We are saved from this affliction; and it does not become us to complain, of any other nomination, however unacceptable, since it is not nearly as bad as it might have been.

The Norwich Bulletin, has gone a little deeper into this matter, and does not hesitate to point out the real significance of this nomination. It says: "The worst that can be said is, that, in itself, it is no guaranty of administrative reform, a principle for which the people and many influential leaders of current opinion, have this year developed a wonderful enthusiasm."

This is truly, as the Philadelphia Times would say, getting at the real inwardness of the matter; it is the gist of the whole thing—the issue of the campaign in a nutshell. "Administrative reform," is what the people demand; and it is precisely this, that we have no "guaranty of" by the nomination of Hayes and Wheeler.

They tell us that these men are personally pure, honest and blameless in their private lives—that there is not a blot or a blur upon their fair escutcheon. Be it so; we trust it is so. It will relieve the Democratic party of the disagreeable task of exposing personal faults and frailties of invading what should be the sanctity of private life. It will dignify the contest; and we trust, in some degree purify the political atmosphere.

But, even if it be true that these men are as pure and upright as they are claimed to be, this fact in no manner reaches the great and paramount question before the American people. It is, "in itself no guaranty of administrative reform;" and, unfortunately, there is nothing in the present attitude or past history of the Republican party that helps to supply this all-important guaranty, but the very reverse.

It is easy to show that this admission of the Bulletin is no more than the simple truth. All the facts connected with the nomination demonstrate its truth. At another time, I will endeavor to point out these facts, and show that no other conclusion can be justly and logically reached from all the premises before us. In the meantime we accept the frank and truthful admission and thank the Bulletin for it. The nomination and election of Hayes "is no guaranty of administrative reform" It is even so! O.

CIRCUMSTANCES ALTER CASES.

A general howl of indignation arose from the Republican press, when the Democratic House changed its officers. It was declared to be outrageous The action of the Republicans of New Hampshire however, in removing all Democratic officials in the State, is greeted with intense delight. It makes a difference on which foot the boot is.

Who is the oldest living member of the Pennsylvania Legislature? Alexander Colley, residing in Benton township, this county, now past ninety years of age, represented Columbia county in the lower house of the Pennsylvania Legislature for the years 1823, 1824 and 1825—more than fifty years ago.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 27, 1876.

There was little of interest transacted in the House of Congress on Saturday, excepting the passage of the bill to repave Pennsylvania Avenue, and that indeed is only interesting to the tax-payers of the city, and the railroad that traverses that street. To them it is very interesting in a pecuniary point of view as it will cost them heavily to pay their allotted proportion. Mr. Sayler, of Ohio, on Saturday was elected Speaker of the House pro tem vice Mr. Cox, who was absent, having gone to St. Louis. This will make Mr. Sayler Speaker until Mr. Kerr resumes his duties, and should he die or resign (neither of which it is hoped will take place) it will go a long way towards making Mr. Sayler Speaker for the next session. The city is full of strangers and the streets look lively. The most prominent topic is the anticipated action of the St. Louis Convention. It is a recognized fact that while the citizens of Washington have no voice in the selection of a President, they are perhaps more immediately concerned than the people of any other city, hence the excitement that exists here during every compaign among local politicians. From present appearances there does not appear that self denial on the part of prominent aspirants at St. Louis, which should characterize those who have the success of great party principles at heart and feel that in disseminating those principles they will be serving the best interests of their country. This one, that one, or the other won't take the second place on the ticket! Oh, yes, so and so, and so and so, would make an ex ellent ticket and would be certain of election; but we must change the order of their names. Oh no, our man first or not at all. Now talk like this won't do. Let it be known at St. Louis that the office seeks the man and not the man the office, and when the representatives of the Democratic party there assembled shall declare or intimate its preference for one to fill a certain position let us hope that all personal or local considerations will be at once thrown aside and that the party designated will at once avow himself ready to serve his party and thus benefit his country. There will be other elections to take place in coming years and afford ample opportunity for such self abnegation to find its rewards. The Morning News argues very conclusively that the recent order issued from the War Department discontinuing the military division of the South has a far deeper significance than appears on its face. It is understood to be the initiation of a plan designed to secure the electoral votes of Alabama, Arkansas, Louisiana and Mississippi for the Republican candidates. These four States will now be under the direct military control of Lieut Genl. Sheridan who can be depended upon to carry out any design conceived at this point. The recent interview of Louisiana Radical politicians with the President was in connection with this plot. Such of the Marshals and District Attorneys in the States named as cannot be depended on to carry out their share of the undertaking will be removed and their places filled by more pliant tools. The Secretary of War will stretch his powers to the utmost verge and troops will be posted where they can best serve party purposes. Delaware Republicans are not all pleased with the President's choice of a new District Attorney for them. Their principal organ the Wilmington Commercial calls the appointment of Fisher scandalous and adds: "What influence could have brought it about can only be conjectured. If the appointment is to stand then Babcock should resume his former place and Belknap go into the War Department again. Judge Fisher had not the support of the Republican party of the State, nor the respect and confidence of the people, and after his well known card in Washington, his appointment is an insult."

RENO.

The Camerons are already after scalps Reed, the U. S. District Attorney for the Western District of Pa. has been removed to make way for H. H. McCormick. Reed was a Blaine man—McCormick a Cameron follower. The former was a gentleman and a capable officer. The latter, whilst in the Legislature was less distinguished for legal lore, than for brutality. He always went with Mackey.

Persons living in unhealthy localities may avoid all bilious attacks by taking a dose of Dr. Bull's Vegetable Pills occasionally to keep the liver in a healthy condition.

Maine, to pacify Blaine, has made him a U. S. Senator vice Morrell who has been appointed Secretary of the Treasury. He can now have the pleasure of sitting by the side of Simon Cameron. "Let there be peace."

We trust that none of our cotemporaries will insert the advertisement of M. House in regard to obtaining "Absolute Divorces." The man is a swindler, and his business dishonorable, if not illegal.

Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy

is no Patent Medicine Humbug, got up to dupe the ignorant and credulous, nor is it represented as being "composed of rare and precious substances brought from the four corners of the earth, carried seven times across the Great Desert of Sahara on the backs of fourteen camels, and brought across the Atlantic Ocean on two ships." It is a simple, mild, soothing remedy, a perfect Specific for Catarrh and "Cold in the Head" also for Offensive Breath, Loss or Impairment of the sense of Smell, Taste or Hearing, Watery or Weak Eyes, Pain or pressure in the Head, when caused, as they all not unfrequently are, by the violence of Catarrh.

Something New—An Imported Remedy—Cannabis Indica.

This wonderful preparation, known by the above title, which has attained such celebrity during the past few years in all parts of the United States as a positive cure for Consumption, Bronchitis and Asthma, can now be obtained at all first class druggists. We have made permanent arrangements in Calcutta, India, for obtaining "Pure Hemp," and having it extracted upon its own soil (the climate in America being too changeable to extract large quantities free from mildew) These remedies are now prepared from the best Hemp gathered at the right season and extracted during mid-summer in Calcutta. There is not a single symptom of Consumption that it does not dissipate, and it will break a fresh cold in twenty-four hours. One bottle will satisfy the most skeptical. $2.50 per bottle or 3 bottles for $6.50.

As this is an imported article, we do not commission our remedies, but will be pleased to make cash agents everywhere.

Brooks, Me., Sept. 7, 1870.

Dear Sir: From early youth I was in feeble health, troubled with humor in my blood, weakness and debility of the system generally; was unable to labor much, only at some light business, and then only with great caution.

Seven years ago the past spring I had a severe attack of Diptheria, which left my limbs paralized and useless, so I was unable to walk or even sit up. Noticing the advertisement of Peruvian Syrup, I concluded to give it a trial, and to my great joy soon found my health improving. I continued the use of the Syrup until three bottles had been used, and was restored to complete health, and have remained so to this day.

I attribute my present health entirely to the use of Peruvian Syrup, and hold it in high estimation. I cannot speak too highly in its praise. I have several times recommended it in cases similar to my own with the same good results.

Yours truly,
Charles E. Pearcy.

It is necessary for us to have money, as we are obliged to pay cash for labor and material. A member of the firm will call upon our town subscribers during the coming week for the purpose of collecting subscriptions due for the present year, which expires October 1st, 1876. Our terms are payable in advance, and as we have furnished the COLUMBIAN for nine months without asking for pay, we hope our calls will be successful.

The graduating class at Lafayette this year numbers 65.

Farmers—Harman & Hassert are experienced hands at repairing Reapers and Mowers.

Owing to the absence of the pastors several of our churches were closed on Sunday.

The young man who spends most of his time in the yard back of our office makes too much noise.

Can't Capt. Ernst bring his troop to Bloomsburg next Tuesday? Hemlock can do almost anything.

Our genial young friend Gideon Myers, formerly of this place, has started a job office at Nanticoke. We wish him success.

J. B. Scott has purcased the bakery of C. S. Miller, and will hereafter run it in connection with his up-town store.

The festival of the M. E. Church in the Opera House last week was quite successful. The band enlivened the occasion by their presence.

If you desire a good picture go to the artist who advertises in the COLUMBIAN. If you wish the proper expression eat a large quantity of cucumbers for breakfast.

Geo. S. Tillson has opened a tobacco store in the room formerly occupied by C. M. Girton, where he keeps a fine stock of everything in his line. Try it.

Hereafter resolutions of condolence to be inserted in the COLUMBIAN must be paid for as advertisements. Our space is too limited to insert matter that is not of general interest.

PERSONAL.—Charles H. Lee, Superintendent of common schools in Wyoming county, Philip V. Weaver, of Hazleton, David Harman, L. Garman, former students at the Normal School, were in town last week.

The individual who took the gold pen of the undersigned from the office of the County Commissioners on Monday last is requested to return the same at once, or his name will be given to the public.

MARTIN PURCEL,
June 30-2w Sec'y.

On last Thursday night an unfortunate man whose name is unknown, and who was evidently suffering from delirium tremens was placed in the lock-up. He threatened to kill himself, but his knife was taken away. On Saturday he tramped towards Danville.

The COLUMBIAN has erected a large bulletin board in the Court House yard, on which will be found the latest news from all parts of the country as it is received. Bills and posters printed at this office will find a place on the bulletin, which is in the most public location in town, and therefore the best place to advertise.

For the past two weeks accidents and delays in our office have prevented us from giving that careful attention to proof reading which is customary with us. The result has been many typographical errors, which we hope our many readers will overlook as they were caused by circumstances over which we had no control.

TEACHER'S EXAMINATION.—The Annual Examination of Teachers, for the public schools of the Borough of Centralia will be held on Tuesday, July 11th, at the new school house, commencing at 10 o'clock, a. m.

By order of the Board,
C. G. MURPHY, Secretary.

The Masonic picnic at Knorr's grove on Saturday last was largely attended. There was music and dancing, and the address by Rev. Dr. McCron is very highly spoken of. The weather was all that could be desired, and every body enjoyed themselves. We regret that business engagements prevented our attendance.

The Street Commissioner is at work grading Market street from Third to the railroad. The pavement in front of Rev. D. J. Waller's has been cut down and the bank sodded, which greatly improves the appearance of the property. Market street to the depot will soon be in perfect condition.

Burglary.—The house of Mrs. Mifflin, of Beach Haven, was entered by a burglar last Friday night. He compelled Mrs. Mifflin and her son to keep quiet, and then, having secured all the weapons he could find, proceeded through the house. In about an hour he left, taking with him a revolver and about $30 in money.

A Constitutional amendment has been introduced into the House of Representatives giving to the people the election of United States postmasters, marshals, revenue collectors and assessors once every four years. Now, Mr. Beckley, see Cameron and have this nonsense stopped. Why, if the people had any thing to say about a master, you would have vacated years ago.

A levy of two mills on the dollar has been made by the Directors of the Bloom Poor District. This shows the advantage of our present poor system. There is hardly another poor district in the county where the poor tax is so low. The judicious management of the Directors has much to do with the success of the plan, and they deserve much credit for their careful attention to the duties of their office.

The boys have the velocipede fever now, and many of them have been provided with the means of cure in the shape of a three wheeled vehicle. It is fine fun for the children, but parents should caution them against running at a breakneck rate on the public streets where teams are constantly passing. We have known several instances where horses have been badly frightened by them, and as the little fellows are not thoughtful enough to stop when they see the effect of their amusement, something serious may happen unless they are restrained and cautioned by their parents.

The election held in Mifflin last Saturday to change the place of holding elections resulted in the defeat of the project by a vote of 107 to 96.

The Callicpian Society will hold a promenade festival on the Normal School grounds on the evenings of the 3d and 4th of July.

The members of the Lutheran congregation will hold a festival in the Opera House on the evening of the 3d and 4th of July, and serve refreshments during the day on the 4th. Proceeds for the benefit of the church.

Through the kindness of the Western Union Telegraph Company Bloomsburg was furnished with reports of the balloting for President at Cincinnati as fast as the result was known there. The St. Louis nominations were also made known to us by the company within a few minutes after they were made. Such enterprise deserves the thanks of the people.

A feud between an up-town merchant and a clerk in a neighboring store resulted on Wednesday night in the former's throwing a glass at the latter, striking him in the back of the head and cutting him dangerously. Whatever the provocation may have been, the method of defense was neither safe nor brave. We understand the young man is lying in a critical condition.

The Luzerne embezzlement cases were concluded by Treasurer Cortwright and Commissioners Williams and Seybert pleading guilty. Cortwright plead guilty to embezzling $20,000; Williams was fined $750, and Seybert $150. From the statements made by the attorneys of these defendants, it appeared that the money was taken as gifts, not as per any previous arrangement.

We had the pleasure of attending a festival at Buck Horn on last Saturday night. It was held for the benefit of Fuge's Band, who are securing uniforms. Where the people came from we cannot imagine, but the building was literally packed from garret to cellar. So dense was the crowd that it was almost impossible to move inside, and there were a great many outside. Buck Horn never does things half way.

The Bloomsburg Normal school will not get a hundred and twenty thousand dollars from the state, as the governor vetoed the bill.—Independent.

Our neighbor should post himself. Our Normal School asked for $30,000, and the bill was signed by the Governor.

Governor Hartranft will please accept our thanks for a bound copy of the general laws passed by the legislature of this state during the session of 1876.—Independent.

That shows the advantage of being a Republican editor. The one sent us had a paper cover only. Still we are under obligations to the Governor for remembering us.

ANOTHER SUICIDE.—On last Friday morning George Hartman, a citizen of Hemlock, aged 80 years, committed suicide by hanging himself. It seems that he went to the wagon house, procured a small rope, fastened it to a beam above his head, and then dropped down. When found he was lifeless, and upon his knees, evidently having choked to death. For some years he has suffered terribly from cancer, which had eaten off his ear and a hole in his neck. Insanity was no doubt the cause.

A large number of the citizens of this County will visit the Centennial Exhibition during the summer. The proper way is to make arrangements before leaving home, and by consulting our advertising columns parties will find good and reliable hotels. They can ascertain the price per day, and select from the list such a one as they wish to patronize. All who advertise in this paper are good. To hotels we would say that they can not find a better advertising medium than the COLUMBIAN, as our circulation is the largest in the county.

At a special meeting of the town council on Monday evening an ordinance was passed prohibiting cows from running at large in the town of Bloomsburg. It is a question in the minds of many of the citizens as to which is of the most importance, the cows or some of the councilmen.—Sentinel.

It may be that our intellect is too blunt too comprehend the full meaning of the above, but our interpretation of it is this: the Sentinel man, who proposes to conduct our local affairs hereafter, expects to be elected a member of the Town Council next year, and if he should not succeed in having the ordinance referred to repealed it would greatly impair his usefulness, as the ordinance prohibits cattle from running at large, and that includes calves.

[Communicated.]

Last Sabbath a very large concourse assembled at Buck Horn to show their last tokens of respect to the mortal remains of an old and respected friend and neighbor, Mr. George Hartman. Several things connected with the deceased make him an object of interest and are worthy of a passing notice.

He was born in Berks county, January 30th, 1792, and died at the residence of his son, Amos Hartman, in Buck Horn, June 22, 1876, aged 84 years, 4 months, and 22 days. His father moved to this part of the country toward the close of Washington's administration, when it was an almost unbroken forest. They settled down in the woods, and had a wagon cover for a house and tied their horses to the trees until they could construct other shelter for themselves and their beasts. He spent eighty years of his life within four miles of Buck Horn, where he died. Having been born nine years after the consummation of peace between the colonies and the mother country, he has witnessed the administration of every President of the United States and has voted at every Presidential election since the days of Madison.

He was the father of fifteen children, of whom eleven sons and three daughters lived to be men and women and heads of families. He leaves behind him thirteen children, eighty grandchildren and thirty-eight great-grandchildren. The multitude gathered at his funeral was the largest of the kind ever witnessed at Buck Horn.

Services were held at the M. E. church in Buck Horn by Rev. John Thomas.

The Sentinel man in his able argument of last week comes to the following conclusions: 1st, That "a portion of our citizens are deprived from receiving the benefits (if there are any) arising from gas." For the information of the gentleman we would say that an odor sometimes arises from gas, but benefits never, although there are a few thousand cities and towns in the nation that are laboring under the hallucination that they are benefitted by the use of gas, but it is not the kind furnished by the Sentinel. 2d, That a town lighted by gas is "a bob-tailed form of aristocracy." That is right. We believe some dictionaries do thus define an aristocracy, but they fail to say anything about the "bob-tailed form," so we do not know exactly what that means. 3d, "When a company or corporation attempts to grasp money from a private citizen without compensating that citizen for the same, they become robbers in a modified form." Does he mean the Gas Company? If so, we have only to say that the Company manufactures gas and sells it to the town at lower rates than almost any other town in this State pays for it, and it is not their duty to inquire who is benefitted by its use. If the town corporation "grasps" money from private citizens without compensation, the citizens have a remedy. Hadn't the Sentinel man better tell them what that remedy is, if he knows? And at the same time inform us what are "robbers in a modified form?" We had always supposed robbery to be robbery, but we confess ignorance as to the "modified form" of that crime. From the legal opinion expressed at the end of the article in question it looks very much as though some one was fishing for a case.

Grand Centennial Celebration!

BLOOMSBURG, PA.,

JULY FOURTH, 1876.

In pursuance of the recommendation of President Grant and Governor Hartranft, a Grand Celebration will be held at Bloomsburg, Pa., July 4th, 1876, to celebrate the Centennial Anniversary of American Independence. On this occasion there should be a grand rally from every portion of the County. Our soldiers, citizens and societies should make it an occasion never to be forgotten.

CHIEF MARSHAL, COL. S. KNORR.

ASSISTANT MARSHALS.

C. W. NEAL, CHARLES KNORR, W. H. JACOBY, WM. H. BROWN, C. S. FURMAN, HENRY MCKELVY, COL. CHESTER HUGHES, F. P. DRINKER, GEO. H. BROWN, C. M. VANDERSLICE, K. CENT, DR. W. M. REBER, HERVEY E. SMITH.

PROF. T. L. GRISWOLD,

Principal of the State Normal School, will read the Declaration of Independence.

A summary of the history of Columbia county, to be filed in the National and State archives, and in the Prothonotary's Office, will be given by

HON. JOHN G. FREEZE.

The ladies of Bloomsburg and the church choirs and glee clubs will sing airs appropriate for the occasion.

FIRE COMPANIES.

Among those present will be Eagle Hose of Pittston, Washington Fire and Hose of Danville, Friendship No. 1 of Bloomsburg, and "1776" Fire Co. of Bloomsburg.

GRAND TABLEAUX,

Thirteen Original States, by young ladies, contrasting also 1776 and 1876. Another tableaux, consisting of twenty-five young ladies appropriately representing the additional twenty-five States.

A GRAND CARNIVAL SCENE,

consisting of maskers, representing the customs and costumes of the various nations of the earth. For this purpose costumes have been procured from New York at large expense.

THE WYOMING ARTILLERY,

under Capt. J. E. Ullman, will arrive on the evening of the 3d, and at sunrise of the 4th will fire a salute of will parade in due time on horseback, and add amusement to the occasion.

ONE HUNDRED GUNS.

COMPANY "Q" FANTASTICS

BLOOMSBURG SILVER CORNET BAND

and FUGE'S NEW BAND from Buck Horn will furnish music for the occasion. All bands, societies and organizations that intend to participate and have not yet reported should do so at once.

EXCURSION TRAIN.

The L. & B. R. R. will run an excursion train from Scranton, starting from there at 7:35 a. m., and leaving stations south of Avondale as follows:

Nanticoke, 8:55 a. m.; Hunlock's, 9:15; Shickshinny, 9:30; Hicks' Ferry, 9:45; Beach Haven, 9:53; Berwick, 10:00; Willow Grove, 10:10; Lime Ridge, 10:16; Espy, 10:25; arrives at Bloomsburg at 10:35. The train will return the same evening.

C. B. BROCKWAY,
Chairman of Committee.

We have been shown the prospectus of a new work entitled "Our First Century," and we are ready to say that the manufacture, paper, style, and number of engravings and character of the work are far superior to any book we have seen sold by subscription, and a credit to our centennial year. As many thousand copies are already being prepared for the press the work will be issued far below the price usually asked for works of less value. The standing of the book is proved by the number of recommendations the publishers have received from public men at Washington. Their names are printed in the prospectus book in fac simile of their own writing, and their penmanship is a matter of real interest and curiosity to examine. The following are a few of the recommendations received from some of our townsmen:

BLOOMSBURG, Pa., June 27th, 1876.

After a careful examination of "Our First Century," by R. M. Devins, I do not hesitate to give it my hearty endorsement as a book of great interest and value. As a book of reference by our students for general information on nearly all important facts in the history of the past century of our country, I think it of the highest value. I shall be only too glad to have it in our school library. I hope the book may have an extended sale among all classes of people, which it surely merits.

T. L. GRISWOLD, A. M.,
Principal State Normal School.

BLOOMSBURG, Pa., June 23d, 1876.

I have examined with considerable care the book entitled "Our First Century," and am so much pleased with its arrangement of the great facts of the century that I have subscribed for it, and will be glad to see it widely disseminated.

JOHN MCCRON,
Pastor Lutheran Church.

BLOOMSBURG, Pa., June 23d, 1876.

"Our First Century," by R. M. Devins, presents many interesting events in our national history in a concentrated form and with striking illustrations. I commend it to those wishing information pertinent to our centennial year.

D. J. WALLER.

BLOOMSBURG, Pa., June 24th, 1876

The work entitled "Our First Century" brings vividly to the mind of the general reader the great historic events of the one hundred years of our national existence in a compact and interesting form. It contains a fund of intelligence which the youth of the land cannot so readily acquire from any other book, and so attractively presented as to beget a desire for more general knowledge of the history of the country. Its illustrations are admirable and numerous. The work commends itself to the public.

WM. ELWELL.

BLOOMSBURG, June 24th, 1876.

I concur in the above commendation of Judge Elwell. C. R. BUCKALEW.

UNION CUNTY PRIMARIES.—This sturdy Republican county is evidently getting its hand in for the fall election. At the late primary election ballot stuffing, repeating and false returns were indulged in to such an extent that the declared nominee for Sheriff has been compelled to withdraw. If these brethren cheat each other, what will they not do against Democratic candidates? But we must remember that a Cameron lives in that county.

THE EVIL FRUITS OF DIGESTION.—There is no pathological fact more clearly ascertained than the most formidable phases of nervous disease are directly traceable to imperfect digestion. Insomnia, with its train of direful consequences, proceeds more frequently from weakness of the stomach than from any other cause. Mere sedatives and powerless to cure nervousness, and soon cease to palliate its symptoms. The true way to strengthen the nervous system is to invigorate the digestive and assimilate organs upon whose unobstructed action its equilibrium is absolutely dependent. The daily use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will do more to brace and soothe the weakeud and irrated nerves, and induce sound, refreshing sleep—nature's grand catholicon—than all the so-called nervines to be found in the pharmacopœia or out of it. A wineglass-full of the Bitters should be taken before each meal.

AN HISTORICAL FACT.—Every agent who has been steadily selling the Improved $20 Hmoe stead Sewing Machine for three years, owns his dwelling house, has a good account in bank, is clear of debt, and has money at interest.—the natural consequence of securing a good agency for superior goods at the lowest prices. A good first-class Sewing Machine, most useful—reliable at all times, easy to understand and control, the same size and does the same work as any machines that sell at four times the price. There is no machine at any price better, or that will do finer or more work, and certainly none so low in price by many dollars. The Homestead is widely known and used in thousands of families in the Eastern and Middle States, and daily becoming popular in the West. It will save its cost several times over in one season, doing the work of the family, or will earn four or five dollars a day for any man or woman who sews for a living. It is the strongest machine made, is ready at all times to do its work, makes the strongest and finest stitch yet invented, and is fully acknowledged as the Standard Family Sewing Machine. Price, complete for domestic use, $20, delivered at your door, no matter how remote you may reside. Business permanent and honorable, with more certain and rapid sales, and larger profits than any other. Extraordinary liberal offers made to local or traveling agents where we have none established; or, if there is no agent near you, send your order direct to the factory. Address John H. Kendall & Co., 630 Broadway, New York. May 5, 76 1y.

Dr. Terry's Vegetable Nerve Remedy.

For a perfect restoration of the nervous system causing an immediate and proper cure in the following cases: Nervous debility, impaired nutrition of the body, insomnia, weakness in the limbs and back, indisposition and incapacity for study, dullness of apprehension, loss of memory, aversion to society, timidity, self-distrust, dizziness, headache, incident to both sexes, for whose benefit it is designed and whose happiness it will promote.

The most eminent physicians of this country have exerted themselves to the utmost to check the increasing fatality resulting from the relaxation of the nerves. Having for a long period devoted much study, time and labor in establishing a remedy for the perfect restoration of the nervous system, it is gratifying to be able to announce the success attending my new method. Through this remedy the nerves can be reached and in such a way that, however shattered or prostrated, they can be perfectly restored. It acts on the nerves at once, yet with gentleness—restoring them to a natural state, and removing the above distressing diseases.

Both sexes, from any loss, through the prostration of the nervous system, lose their energy. In such instances the Nerve Remedy may be relied upon in reviving the patient into the vigor of youth.

The Nerve Remedy is carefully compounded and put up in boxes with full directions. Price, one dollar, expressed to any address on receipt of price.

The Cook's Companion,

Agricultural.

Value of Young Clover.

A few farmers are plowing up fields of young clover of last year's seeding. This practice was quite common a year or or two since, and though not to be recommended has some good arguments in its favor. Of course the clover has not nearly got its growth of top and still less of root. In fact I find that clover roots do not get their largest size until the second growth after the first mowing. It is this which makes growing clover seed so advantageous to the soil. During the hot dry weather of July and August the clover roots strive more deeply into the subsoil than at any previous time; and though the second crop, including seed, is taken from the soil, there is an increase of fertility about by the operation. That is to say there is more fertility available than before.

Of conse there is no absolute gain by taking something from the soil: but what the deep tap roots draw from the subsoil more than balances what is taken away in the hay and seed. In plowing under young clover most of this advantage is lost; but if plowing is delayed until nearly the last of May, there will still be time for planting corn or potatoes. The clover at this early age is very succulent, and immediately begins to decay, making the soil warm and light. There is no trouble from sod in after cultivation where young clover has been plowed under, and the speedy decay of plants under the corn, is for the first few weeks even superior to a dressing of manure. In a heavy rich soil this may be all the fertilizing needed. On the whole, the practice is not nearly so wasteful as it appears, and is certainly much better than leaving the field unseeded because the farmer expects to plow it the following season. Some even argue that it pays to seed spring grain which it is intended to plow and sow in the fall. But this is very doubtful.

Clover the first summer makes a very small growth of either top or root, and as stubble for fall sowing should be plowed as early as possible the clover can be of very little value.

The oats or barley shelled on the ground in harvesting are worth nearly market value as grain for manure when the field is plowed early. I am not sure that it would pay to sow oats on stubble ground to be cultivated under just before drilling in the wheat. Such would be a better, moister seed bed than if left bare during the month of August and early part of September. We have learned during the past few years that the crop of wheat depends mainly on the growth and vigor of the plant the preceding fall. Anything which secures this, whether it be clover or other succulent plants plowed under is of great benefit to the crop.

An Admirable Liquid Grafting Wax.

The following is a recipe for making Lefort's liquid grafting wax, which is highly recommended in France where it was invented, and until lately kept secret: Melt one pound of common rosin over a gentle fire. Add to it an ounce of beef tallow and stir it well. Take it from the fire, let it cool down a little and then mix with a teaspoonful of spirits of turpentine and after that about seven ounces of very strong alcohol (sixty-five per cent.) The alcohol cools it down so rapidly that it will be necessary to put it again on the fire, stirring it constantly. Still the utmost care must be exercised to keep the alcohol from getting inflamed. To avoid it the best way is to remove the vessel from the fire when the lump that may have been formed commences melting again. This must be continued till it is a homogeneous mass, similar to honey. After a few days exposure to the atmosphere it assumes whitish color, and becomes as hard as stone, being impervious to water or air.

Paris Green on Plants.

The annual report of the State Board of Health of Michigan for the year 1875, contains a number of important papers in relation to the general question of public hygiene. One of these is on the use of poisons by Professor Kedize, and especially that of paris green, so extensively used for killing the Colorado potato bug. Although an alarm was occasioned by the use of this insecticide, Professor Kedize states, as the result of a long examination, that in more than 1,000 townships in Michigan, no case of poisoning of vegetables has occurred to the tops of which paris green had been applied, and that the same is the case in wheat; that arsenic in no form has been found as the constituent of the plant grown under such circumstances. In reference to the ultimate disposition of the poison in the soil, he comes to the conclus on that there are certain agents that take it up, making it soluble, so that it is harmless, the most potent of which is hydrate of iron.

GOOD FARM ROADS.—It is much cheaper and more pleasant for farmers to have good roads on the place than bad ones. Teams can haul larger loads, with more safety and comfort, over good roads, from the distant fields and the wood lots, than if there be no roads. Let the stone and roots be gotten out of the way, the rough places be smoothed down, holes filled up, soft places hardened with stones and solid earth, and the teams will haul enough more with less breakage, in a single year, to pay the trouble of making a good road. And besides the farm looks betterr; there is more pleasure and less vexation in the work to both man and team Horses and oxen are so bothered and vexed by the cart or wagon getting into a hole, or in the mud where they could not haul out, and then whipped and scolded till they lose all courage and kindness and became baulky, confirmed in the habit, so that ever afterward they would not draw loads out of difficult places—all from bad roads on the farm.

WORMS ON GRAPEVINES.—If the worms are slightly hairy, cream colored, spotted with black and marked with orange along the sides, forming a loop in walking, syringe the vines with ammonical liquor diluted with water. By experiment on some useless plant with tender foliage, ascertain the least amount of dilution which will not prove injurious to the vines. If the worms are of a bluish green color, dotted with black tubercles, have ten legs, are about an inch long and form a loop in walking, dust with hellebore powder or with lime. Scatter newly slacked lime aroend the vines when the worms drop. Otherwise syringe the vines and dust with lime, or syringe with lime-water. A single pair of sparrows, it is calculated, will destroy 3,000 worms a week.

It is stated as a fact for farmers that seed of a sunflower is the best remedy ever discovered for the speedy cure of founder in horses. Immediately on discovering that young horses are foundered, work about a pint of the whole seed into his food, and it will work a perfect cure.

HEAVES IN HORSES.—The following is a good remedy for heaves and a cough in horses: One pound of ground ginger, one quart of salt, four ounces hard wood ashes, two ounces of black pepper, and one ounce of pounded rosin and salt-petre. Mix thoroughly and give a tablespoonful in the horse's feed twice a day. This compound is beneficial in all cases of difficulty in breathing before the animal's lungs become affected.

Humorous.

It has been ciphered out that there are twelve times as many women as men in Heaven.

An old maid speaking of marriage, says it is like any other disease—while there's life there's hope.

A few days ago a jury in the western wilds gave the following verdict in a case of suicide, "We find the deceased was a fool."

A modern essayist defines gossip to be the "putting of two and two together and making five of them."

"Suppose I should work myself up to the interrogation point?" said a beau to his sweetheart. "I should respond with an exclamation," was the reply.

An old chap seventy-nine years old is going to school in the interior. He didn't think much of school until a lightning-rod man made him belive that five times six were fifty-five.

An Illinois minister announced on his Sunday night Bulletin: "The funeral of Judas Iscariot." To which an obliging fellow added: "Friends of the deceased are cordially invited."

No young man should think of sending poetry to a publisher without sending the names of a few new subscribers as an atonement.

"Are you fond of Hogg's Tales?" asked a city lady of her country lover. "Yes, I like them roasted with salt on them," was the response. "No, I mean have you read Hogg's Tales?" "No, our hogs are white and black I don,t think there's a red one among them."

A prominent clergyman of Brooklyn last week, while taking one of a course of boxing lessons for exercise, received what the boys call a "jolly black eye." On Sunday he chose his text from Timothy, 4th chapter and 7th verse: "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course."

A story is told of Martin Van Ruren, that when a candidate for office—as he frequently was—he once found his wife weeping over a bitter personal attack upon him in one of the newspapers. "Why, my dear," said the wily sage of Kinderhook, "I paid $50 to have that printed."

When Mark Anthony threw himself upon the "dear remains" of his loved Cæsar in a Pittsburgh theatre the other evening, he struck the "corpse" fair in the stomach, which had the effect of doubling it up with a grunt that rather detracted from the solemnity of the occasion.

Some people seem to be extremely sensitive. At a church recently the minister read the prayer for a person in deep affliction, and a man who had just been married got up and went out. He said he didn't want public sympathy obtruded on him in that way.

A young man in western Wisconsin, who who was about to be married the other day, suddenly remembered that he hadn't fed his horse, and the ceremony had to wait until the horse had been cared for. He explained that a good horse couldn't be found every day, while thirteen different girls wanted to marry him.

A young clergyman whose reputation for veracity was none of the best, ventured to differ with an old doctor of divinity as to the propriety of whipping children said: "Why the only time my father whipped me was for telling the truth." Well," retorted the doctor, "It cured you of it, didn't it?"

Everything is Centennial, red-white-and-blue, or star spangled banner. "Maria," screams Flora McFlimsey, "hand me down that Centennial pink silk of mine, that with the revolutionary bias cut on the John Quincy Adams' ruffle."

"What beats a good cup of coffee?" said Mrs. Splikins to her husband the other morning at the breakfast table. He gave it up. "Two cups of coffee," she said. "What beats a good wife?" queried Splinkins. She gave it up. "Two good wives," said Splinkins, and then she got mad and skulked, nobody knew why.

He entered a car door. When the brakeman came inside and took a key out of his pocket, unlocked the stove, put in some wood and locked the door again, he asked him what he locked the stove door for. The brakeman shut his left eye, and said he locked the door so the fire couldn't go out.

VEGETINE

Purifies the Blood, Renovates and Invigorates the whole System.

Its Medical Properties are

ALTERATIVE, TONIC, SOLVENT AND DIURETIC.

Vegetine is made exclusively from the juice of carefully selected barks, roots and herbs, and so strongly concentrated, that it will effectually eradicate from the system every taint of Scrofula, Scrofulous Humor, Tumors, Cancer, Cancerous Humor, Erysipelas, Salt Rheum, Syphilitic Diseases, Canker, Faintness at the Stomach, and all diseases that arise from impure blood. Sciatica, Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Gout and Spinal Complaints, can only be effectually cured through the blood.

For Ulcers and Eruptive diseases of the Skin Pustules, Pimples, Blotches, Boils, Tetter, Scaldhead and Ringworm Vegetine has never failed to effect a permanent cure.

For Pains in the Back, Kidney Complaints, Dropsy, Female Weakness, Leucorrhœa, arising from internal ulceration, and uterine diseases and General Debility, Vegetine acts directly upon the causes of these complaints. It invigorates and strengthens the whole system, acts upon the secretive organs, allays inflammation, cures ulceration and regulates the bowels.

For Catarrh, Dyspepsia, Habitual Costiveness, Palpitation of the Heart, Headache, Piles, Nervousness and General Prostration of the Nervous System no medicine has ever given such perfect satisfaction as the Vegetine. It purifies the blood, cleanses all of the organs, and possesses a controlling power over the nervous system.

The remarkable cures effected by Vegetine have induced many physicians and apothecaries whom we know to prescribe and use it in their own families.

In fact, Vegetine is the best remedy yet discovered for the above diseases and is the only reliable BLOOD PURIFIER yet placed before the public.

PREPARED BY

H. R. STEVENS Boston, Mass.

What is Vegetine?—It is a compound extracted from the barks, roots and herbs. It is Nature's Remedy. It is perfectly harmless from any bad effect upon the system. It is nourishing and strengthening. It acts directly upon the blood. It quiets the nervous system. It gives you good, sweet sleep at night. It is a great panacea for our aged fathers and mothers; for it gives them strength, quiets their nerves, and gives them Nature's sweet sleep,—as has been proved by many an aged person. It is the great Blood Purifier. It is a soothing remedy for our children. It has relieved and cured thousands. It is very pleasant to take; every child likes it. It relieves and cures all diseases originating from impure blood. Try the Vegetine. Give a fair trial for your complaints: then you will say to your friend, neighbor and acquaintance, "Try it: it has cured me."

Vegetine for the complaints for which it is recommended, is having a larger sale throughout the United States than any other one medicine. Why? Vegetine will cure these complaints.

VALUABLE INFORMATION.

BOSTON, Dec. 12, 1869.

Gentlemen—My only object in giving you this testimonial is to spread valuable information. Having been badly afflicted with Salt Rheum, and the whole surface of my skin being covered with pimples and eruptions, many of which caused me great pain and annoyance, and knowing it to be a blood disease, I took many of the advertised blood preparations, among which was any quantity of Sarsaparilla, without obtaining any benefit until I commenced taking the Vegetine, and before I had completed the first bottle I saw that I had got the right medicine. Consequently, I followed on with it until I had taken seven bottles, when I was pronounced a well man, and my skin is smooth and entirely free from pimples and eruptions. I have never enjoyed so good health before, and I attribute it all to the use of Vegetine. To benefit those afflicted with Rheumatism, I will make mention also of the Vegetine's wonderful power of curing me of this acute complaint, of which I have suffered so intensely.

TO THE AFFLICTED AND UNFORTUNATE.—There is no class of diseases that require more experience to treat successfully than those of a private character. Many physicians suppose that when the primary symptoms are removed, the disorder or poison has been overcome. Such is not the case. The difficulties, or the various stages of the disease are then to succeed. The parts first attacked are the throat, nose, mouth, tongue, skin, tendons, bones, ligaments, ears, eyes, &c. Frequently these symptoms are treated by physicians as simple ulcerations, until some of the important organs of the body become involved, when death relieves the sufferer. DR. H. W. LOSS, having made all private diseases a study, guarantees a speedy and permanent cure with purely vegetable medicines. Medical offices and drug store, No. 831 North Fifteenth Street. IT PAYS any smart man who wishes to make $2,000 a year on a small capital to commence in our line of business. ROOFING IS A SPECIALTY. There is no one in your county who can take up the business. You can learn it in one week by studying our instructions, which we send to all who ask for them. Any man having $1.0 to start with, can purchase enough material to roof 3 ordinary houses. The sum realized from sale and profit on this supply, added to the regular pay for labor as roofer should amount to not less than $60. An expert man could easily do the work in nine working days. Two persons of small means can join together to advantage; one, canvassing, while the other attends to the work, send for our book of instructions: if you write at once and study it. Ask for terms. If you are unable to advance the money, present the matter to the principal storekeeper in your place, and talk it over with him. He will be glad to furnish the stock and divide the profit with you. We will guarantee the territory to the first responsible applicant. Address N. Y. SLATE ROOFING CO., LIMITED, 4 Cedar St., N. Y., and mention. D & Co. June5-4w

NEW BOOK,

Which in thrilling interest, sterling merit, elegance and cheapness, has absolutely no equal. It is "The Thing" for the Centennial period—takes on sight.

The "North American Review" says it is "deserving of unqualified praise: we anticipate for it an extensive popularity:" the "Chicago Times" says, "Just such a work as thousands of the American people will be glad to possess:" the "Detroit Advertiser" calls it "preferable to any yet published." Any active man or woman of good address insured large profits and steady work for a year. For full particulars address J. H. FORD & CO.,
